

TELEWOMEN SEX APPEAL HAS LITTLE VALUE AS BUSINESS ASSET

FEDERATION HEAD CITES DEADLINE

Charges Male Conspiracy to Hold Feminine Advance in Check

MAINE ISLAND, Mich., July 10 (AP)—A blow at sex appeal as a business asset was dealt by Louis E. Van Norman of Washington, editor and chief business specialist of the United States Department of Commerce, in addressing the formal opening session of the pioneer convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

He said a recent survey conducted by the United States Department of Commerce to determine the effect of sex on salesmanship showed it of little worth. Questionnaires showed that when men purchase articles for personal use, they do not like to deal with women clerks, he said, but when purchasing for women they want feminine advice.

WHAT MEN DON'T LIKE
In outlining three other factors that rub men the wrong way, he said:

"We don't like to see women using business as a waiting period for marriage. We don't like to see women not good sports; that is, we want women to remember that the head of the postoffice line or the head end in a street car is not always reserved for them."

A man-drawn deadline, beyond which women cannot pass in business, politics, the professions or any other competitive pursuit, was declared by Lena Madeline Phillips, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women within the state future and recommended establishment of a permanent home for the federation in Washington. A committee was named to report at the 1933 biennial convention on ways and means of obtaining such a federation home.

SEX PERMANENT HOME.
Mrs. Phillips, a New York attorney, said the drive of women toward "place communitate" with their ability has met an obstacle which threatens to halt it permanently.

Mrs. Phillips predicted an International Federation of Business and Professional Women within the state future and recommended establishment of a permanent home for the federation in Washington. A committee was named to report at the 1933 biennial convention on ways and means of obtaining such a federation home.

In his plea for the safe return of his son, Santa Damore wrote in part to the boy's kidnappers: "I would pawn my eyes to take my innocent boy back to my home. I go down on my knees to you to respect my boy. Tell him to come back home soon. You do that for your mother's love if you don't want to do it for me and his mother. God bless you in Heaven."

BANK IS SHORT TWO MILLIONS

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—Clark Brothers, old established private bank in the financial district, which failed with liabilities of $5,700,000 on June 29, had assets the actual value of which was less than $3,000,000 as compared with their book value of $5,852,000, the Irving Trust Company, receivers, announced today.

The actual minimum value of the bank assets totaled $600,000, and the actual maximum value $1,830,000, said Col. D. W. McCormack, head of the Irving Trust Company's receivership department. The creditors' dividend probably will be 25 cents on a dollar.

Almost frantic with grief and near collapse, Mrs. Santo Damore spent today in anguished prayer at the racket, embowered in floral tributes to her 10-year-old son, Salvatore, victim of North End vengeance feud. Boston Evening American staff photo.

shows her kneeling at bier with her daughter, Josephine, one of her remaining four children, who are being closely guarded at their home in Stillman st. against further vengeance attempts on the part of the slayers of little Salvatore, who was lured, it is believed, to Lynn and killed in Saugus.

or bootleggers was back of the kidnaping and death of the son of Damore, one-time publisher of Boston's wholesale alcohol traffic. The tight-lipped attitude of Damore, Sr., supported this theory, as did the newly discovered fact that, after an arrest for rum running in Chelsea, Damore and certain notorious associates became involved in a bitter quarrel over who should pay the fine.

Damores did pay, finally, but before threats had been made and vengeance promised.

BOY LAD TO REST.
With scores of his schoolmates and mourners and 10 of his best chums as pallbearers, the funeral of little Salvatore was held from the Stillman st. house at 2-30, with prayers in the Sacred Heart Church, North End.

Because of the boy's youth there were no massed bands, but the body was carried into church for the brief prayer service.

The pallbearers were Patsy Palmarelli, Dante Vignocco, Salvatore De Richard, Joseph Calabrese, William Fracalietto, Anthony Budewski, Joseph Valtierra, Ignazio Diminico, Joseph Contardone and Benny Nodella, all pupils in St. Mary's school, North End.

Seven uniformed plainclothes policemen were in the throng at the house, watching for possible outbreaks, and there was another detail of police at the church.

The small white casket was banked with flowers in the church, one of the floral tributes being made by a woman who dropped dead at Stillman and Hanover st. last night after leaving her flowers at the Damore home. She was Mrs. Andrea Anconio de Lewis st., North End.

Another woman, Mrs. Angelina Cuccio, of Pearl st., Malden, son of the murdered boy, collapsed at the house and was treated at Haymarket Relief Hospital.

She was officially believed that Damore was marked for revenge and so when he was released to contribute to a fund for the defense of gangsters who were on trial for a North End slaying. He told them it was "too much," and argued that he belonged to no "mob" and that he ought not to be expected to pay such a big sum. He told them he had been injured from $5 to whenever they collected him but was now "all through."

Then they warned him he would pay in another way, he said.

KNOWS SLAYER, HE SAYS.
In broken English, oftentimes lapsing back to fluent Italian, he said:

"I know who did it—after the funeral I tell and me and the police will get them. The gang, they been coming here for five, six months, they had hard luck, stories and they collect from $5 to $50 and I also give."

"They say they need for friends in trouble and I give and then I refuse and they threaten me. After my friends on Hanover st. tell me they had hard luck, I tell them I will not do now, too early. It might go me harm, too."

WILLIS MAY BE S. ENVOY TO TURKEY

Ohio Automobile Magnate Is Reported Chosen for Post by the President

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The post of ambassador to Turkey, where the market for American automobiles is complicated by severe Italian competition, is expected to be a number of Washington observers to be offered to John N. Willis, veteran Ohio automobile manufacturer.

Contrary to the report circulated in Wall Street, after it was learned that Willis was disposing of his industrial holdings, that he was being considered for appointment to the diplomatic corps at Paris, the Willis House declined that the President has another assignment in mind for the manufacturer.

What that assignment might be was not made known, but the President's interest in the Paris post is believed to have settled fairly definitely on Senator Ely of New Jersey.

An offer of the Turkish post, Willis is regarded as fitting, not only into the competitive trade situation, but into the impression here that Joseph C. Grey, the present ambassador, is to be transferred to a Latin-American capital.

The linking of Willis's name with the Turkish post, however, has not been given anything approaching official confirmation and it is understood that an preliminary move has been made to ascertain whether he would be "persona grata" to the Ankara government.

Civil Service for Sleuths Demanded

On complaint of a delinquent representing the Massachusetts Police Chief's Association, Governor Allen stated that he would investigate the charge that the State department is not employing detectives without resorting to the civil service test.

Members of the delegation who called upon the governor today to discuss the matter, but a report will be made by Commissioner Alvin J. Foot, who is now with the State military forces at Camp Devens.

MISSING MAN'S BODY FOUND

The body of a man who engaged a steamer named "St. Louis" and disappeared from the Eastern Steamship Boston, on route from New York, on July 1, was found today on the shore of Little Neck, Long Island, near New Bedford.

A steamer named No. 64, and a ticket on the Eastern Steamship Lines, were found on his person.

The steamer company, called at Boston police on July 1 that a man named P. Lemis, who occupied stateroom No. 64 on the Boston, disappeared during the trip. Nothing additional is known of the man's identity. He is about 40.

Bereaved by Slayers

They theorize that after he was taken to the blue sedan in which he was seen to ride away, three weeks ago, he was perhaps blindfolded so that he wouldn't observe the direction in which the car was taken. He was held in a house in Revere or Lynn until the ransom demands had been made and complied with, and then smothered to make certain of his silence.

CAUSE OF DEATH MYSTERY

The police now believe the boy was taken for a "ride" to Revere, where he was held in a house until he was smothered. The medical officials have been unable to determine the exact cause of his death, he was not malnourished in a manner to have visible marks.

SALLIES' LOVE FINDS A WAY

Haverhill, July 10.—The fifty-cent admission Salvation Army wedding of Herbert Williams and Miss Emma Harris, which was called off two days before it was scheduled to take place in Center Congregational Church, because of the disappearance of the bridegroom-elect, may take place in a few days minus the proposed fare.

Williams has returned to Haverhill and evidently has given a satisfactory explanation to Minister as he applied for a marriage license at City Hall. Neither would discuss their plans, but it is believed they will be married without delay, according to the minister.

When Williams called Haverhill for the ceremony, he wrote his fiancée he "would see her later."

ELTINGE HURT IN COLLISION

Los Angeles, July 10 (AP)—Julian H. Elling, 46, famous impersonator of female roles on the stage, and three others were injured today in a collision of their automobile with a car of the police traffic squad.

Besides Elling, those injured were: Michael Harris, 40, a member of the stage case of Edward Everett Horton; Mrs. Laura Casanova, actress, and Mrs. Belle Spottwell, 25, stage actress of New York.

Its weight, without oil, crew, or passengers is 25 tons, and it is capable of carrying between 20 and 25 tons more, according to Dr. Dorrier, making a total flying weight of somewhere around 50 tons.

GLIDER SCHOOL ON CAPE COD OPENS TODAY

South Wellfleet, July 10.—Men prominent in aviation circles, including a delegation from the Brookline Aero Club are here today to witness the official opening of the Cape Cod Glider School, the only institution in America where this newest science will be systematically taught.

Courses were scheduled to begin early this week, but the successful of planes and other necessary equipment, as well as the delay of enrolled students in reaching South Wellfleet, forced postponement of the opening until today.

Major Vergus Chappie, vice-president of the American Motorist Aviation Corporation and sponsor of the school, declared that its establishment marks the beginning of a new era in American aeronautics and will place Massachusetts in the lead in this scientific advancement.

15 PLANES ON HAND
With the arrival of 15 new planes of the latest glider type and the registration of the students, the summer course will get under way today and will continue well into the fall. Associated with Major Chappie is the management of the school are Maj. C. E. Hall and Lieut. A. J. Parker, both formerly with the 60th Coast Artillery.

Karl von Chillingworth, internationally famous aviator and pilot of Munich, is flight instructor of the school, and intends while here to attempt to break all glider plane records by making a point-to-point flight from the school to Nauset and Highland Lights and back to the field.

Students today will be given instruction in elementary air principles and some practical experience in assembling the gliders. Flight instructor Chillingworth will give a demonstration flight in one of the latest and most advanced type of gliders, and other flights will be made by other glider enthusiasts.

INSTAL CHIEFS OF SALLIES

Col. and Mrs. Joseph Atkinson, new commanding officers of the Salvation Army in New England, assume office today, succeeding Col. and Mrs. Stephen Marshall, retired.

They will meet the headquarters and provincial staffs during the afternoon, and a public reception will be given them in the evening at the South End Municipal Auditorium, Shawmut ave. and West Brookline st., when they will meet officers and soldiers from all sections of New England and adjacent territories.

Col. Atkinson became a private soldier in South Manchester, Conn., in 1880, at a time when the work of the Salvation Army was not understood and even strenuously opposed. He was attached to the National Headquarters in New York for training in 1882 and was sent to Buffalo in 1883.

He met and married Capt. Florence Bryon, then divisional secretary, in Buffalo. He was promoted to be adjutant and the two officers remained in charge of the Buffalo staff until 1886, when they were made staff-captains.

They served in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. Their work in Pittsburgh, where they were located before coming here, was marked by many improvements including women's homes and hospitals, fresh air camps, nurseries for babies, workshops for men and boys, and new buildings.

F. Althorn of Bristolboro. Tinkham Assured of M. E. Board Probe

Washington, July 10.—Following a conference with Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts, Attorney General Mitchell announced he had referred the congressman's letter charging the Methodist Episcopal Church Board of Probation, Discipline and Public Morals with violation of the corrupt practices act to the proper division of the department of justice for an inquiry to determine what course the department shall pursue in the matter.

Tinkham charged in a letter to Atty.-Gen. Mitchell 10 days ago that the board of which Dr. Clarence True Wilson is the executive head, violated the corrupt practices act by failing to file a return of its receipts and expenditures in political activities.

Grand jury proceedings would be necessary to force the board to open its books to the department's agents for inspection to determine the truth of Tinkham's charge.

The board did engage in political activities in the face of Dr. Wilson's denial.

The board has evidenced no intention of co-operating with the department by presenting its books for inspection, and the attorney-general, despite widespread discussion of the Tinkham charge, has refused from committing himself as to whether the department would institute such proceedings if refused permission to inspect the books.

METER FIRM RAPS MAYOR

A rebuke to Mayor Nichols' administration for refusing to give the city's water meter business to the lowest bidder was delivered by the officers of the Pittsburgh Equitable Meter Company in a public letter.

The officers denied the explanation of Mayor Nichols that the Pittsburgh meter did not meet with the specifications and pointed out that their meters installed here 25 years ago are still in service.

The letter stated that in awarding the contract to the fifth lowest bidder, Boston is paying more for the meters than the same company charges to the distant city of Portland, Ore.

Today, in the real estate column of the Standard, a list of properties for sale is given.

COREY DIVORCE MAY NEVER BE PRINCE SOON

Paris, July 10 (AP)—Bent but not broken, the engagement of Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey, divorced wife of the Pittsburgh steel magnate, and Prince Louis de Bourbon, cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, appeared today to have straightened out so well that their wedding may take place before the end of July.

There was even some possibility that the rich American would become Princess of Orleans—which is the title Louis would give his wife—before the end of next week. Statements to this effect were made by their friends.

HE SCORPED $1000. These friends revealed that Mrs. Corey recently made a flying trip to San Remo, where she had a talk with Louis, who only a month ago balked at accepting a mere $1000 monthly as pocket money from his bride and announced that the engagement was over as far as he was concerned.

Mrs. Corey now has returned to her chateau near Paris, but her sister, Mrs. Thomas, is in San Remo talking things over with the erratic Spanish nobleman.

On the other hand, not all of those who know the two parties to the romance, which started 20 years ago when Mrs. Corey won the prince, think only 21, are so optimistic as to the success of an early wedding.

OBSTACLES IN WAY. In the first place, they say no one can change his mind any fast or more unexpectedly than Louis, whose eccentricities have caused his exile from Spain, France and Belgium.

In the second place, Italian law requires the bride to be published three weeks in advance of the wedding, but no body has been reported as visiting the Bourbon-Corey house in San Remo.

Two other considerations are involved: First, that certain European courts, such as a copy of Mrs. Corey's divorce decree, have not arrived for the inspection of Italian officials, and last, but not least, the matter of whether King Alfonso's disinterested cousin, who even though Mrs. Corey has entered the Catholic church.

Monture A. Andrew and Malcolm W. Wicks are slated to be cashiers, while Mr. Andrew will be treasurer of the Pittsburgh Securities Corp.

HIRES SUB TO TAKE EXAM

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Two boys are being held by Washington police today because one of them wanted to join the U. S. Naval Academy, but was found to be color blind.

Henry Shepard, 16, son of a Long Beach, Cal., business man, was named as a candidate for the academy after he passed examinations given by the U. S. Naval Reserve, of which he was a member from California.

He was given a high rating on his mental examination but "fumbled out" his physical examination because of color blindness.

Permission for re-examination was requested and granted. A youth representing himself as Kupp passed his test. Naval officers started questioning.

The boy who was not color blind, they said, readily admitted he was Paul Schoeler of Washington, and he told police he had been retained to take the examination for $10.

SCHOOL DAYS REVIEWED BY COOLIDGE

In the summer of 1891, Calvin Coolidge went with his father from the Coolidge home at Plymouth, Vt., to Bennington, to attend the dedication of the Bennington Battle Monument. On that visit he wrote in August Comstock magazine:

"It was a most elaborate ceremony with much oratory, followed by a dinner and more speaking, with many bands of music and a long military parade."

"I heard President Harrison, who was the first President I had ever seen, make an address. As I looked on him and realized that he personally represented the glory and dignity of the United States I wondered how it felt to bear so much responsibility and little thought I should ever know."

In his days at Black River Academy, at Ludlow, and later at Amherst, Calvin Coolidge never dreamed that the responsibility borne by the nation's chief executive would ever be his.

Continuing his autobiographical article in Comstock, Mr. Coolidge relates in the June issue today the highlights of his academy days and the maturing problems of college. Throughout this article, as in the others, he writes with deft simplicity the joys and the sorrows of his younger days.

Of his sister who died in girlhood, he says: "The memory of the charm of her presence and her dignified devotion to the right will always abide with me."

To his stepmother's memory he pays the following tribute:

"After being without a mother seven years I was greatly pleased to find in her all the motherly devotion that she could have given me if I had been her own son."

Leaving books and music she was not only a mother to me but a teacher. For 30 years she watched me when I went home, writing me when I was away, and encouraging me in all my efforts. When at last she sank to rest she had seen me made governor of Massachusetts and knew I was being considered for the Presidency.

Another of the many highlights contained in the new Comstock is an interview with the Prince of Wales by Frazier Hunt, associate editor of the magazine in Europe.

"More friendly understanding in all we need to iron out any little differences of opinion," the Prince tells Mr. Hunt. "Fewer experts and more human beings to settle our difficulties. If we all could only play golf together..."

The last thing in the world the Prince is thinking of is abdication, writes Mr. Hunt, thus setting at rest the long-lived report that he would renounce the throne.

Testing Machine May Assist Radio Fans

Bangor, Me., July 10.—Radio fans who have for a long time complained that leakage from the municipal power plant or the commercial supply was interfering with reception in some parts of the city are hoping for better times. This city has purchased a testing machine and City Electrician M. D. Gualle is expected to produce results.

HAD 2 WIVES; COURT FINDS ONE PLENTY

The marriage of Doris Kmetz of Cliffside to Alexander Todino, alias Harry Alexander (a 1911), was annulled by Judge McCole in the Suffolk County Probate Court, it appearing that Todino at the time he married Miss Kmetz had a wife living in Italy. Two children have been born to the Todinos, and Judge McCole ordered him to pay $1 a week for their support.

Mildred A. Stone of Falmouth and Boston was given a divorce by Judge McCole from Roy Tufts Stone for desertion. They were married in Philadelphia.

Florence V. Abbott of Boston had her marriage to Forrest L. Abbott of Winthrop annulled by Judge McCole, on the ground that he had another wife living when he contracted the second marriage. The Abbots were married in New York on August 31, 1922, and after living with her husband until July 20, 1927, Mrs. Abbott discovered that her husband was married to Matilda Praga at Worcester on October 2, 1926.

Breaks Feet as He Lights in 20 Foot Fall

Northampton, July 10.—James Endicott of Somerville, an employee of the Boston & Maine Railroad, suffered fractures of both feet here.

Endicott, one of a gang of rippers, was working on a new railroad bridge over lower Main st. when a large truck owned by the Boston, North Adams and Pittsfield Motor Lines of Boston, and operated by Thomas Callahan of Somerville, struck the scaffolding on which the man was standing.

The staging was knocked down, and Endicott fell 20 feet to the street, landing on his feet with such force that both head bones were broken. He was taken to Dickinson Hospital.

from her husband, Merrill K. Thompson for justifiable cause. Mrs. Thompson was given the custody of her two children, Joyce and Audrey, and Thompson was ordered to pay $60 a week for the support of his wife and children.

COURT HEARS STRIKE CASE IN STORE

New Market, N. H., July 10.—The case of Mrs. Rose Pisinski, one of the women strikers of the New Market Manufacturing Co., who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Fred Chrysler, charged with disturbing the peace and maliciously torturing the person of Mrs. Edna Smith, was heard before Judge Alvan H. Place in the local municipal court.

The hearing was scheduled for 10, but when Judge Place arrived and found the courtroom in the Town Hall crowded he refused to hold a public hearing, the court was adjourned across the street to the drug store of Judge Place, at which only the material witnesses and counsel were present.

Mrs. Pisinski pleaded not guilty, but Judge Place found probable cause and imposed a fine of $10 and costs. Attorney Michael Shea of Manchester, representing the defendant, entered an appeal and the case was taken to the Rockingham County Superior Court, to be held next October at Exeter.

The strikers held a mass meeting in Foresters' Hall.

Norwood Asked to Join Fight for Busses

Norwood, July 10.—Seeking the support of Norwood in their attempt to persuade the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. to establish a bus line between East Walpole and the Boston line, a selectman from Dedham and another from Walpole appeared before the local board.

Selectman F. A. Chamberlain of Dedham and Selectman John Book of Walpole were introduced by Charles W. Reed, chairman of the transportation committee of the Norwood Chamber of Commerce.

Selectman Chamberlain said that the residents of Dedham, Westwood and Walpole are in favor of this plan, which calls for the abandonment of the street car lines in favor of the bus lines on the route mentioned.

The railway company has been planning to relocate some of its tracks, Chamberlain said. Three railway engineers have estimated that this would cost $25,000. For $25,000, the speaker declared, the railway company could establish a fleet of busses over the East Walpole-Boston line route.

By elimination of the car tracks in Dedham, the town would be able to carry out the proposed widening of Washington st. from the Willows to Dedham at the cost of $100,000.

The operation of busses would prove more economical, Mr. Chamberlain argued, since it would cost about 25 cents a mile to run them while it costs 87 cents a mile to operate the street cars.

As owner of the Oakdale Community Bus Line, Selectman Chamberlain offered to waive all rights of operating his busses on Washington st. if the railway company will establish a bus line on the desired route.

At the conclusion of the hearing the Norwood Board of Selectmen declared that they would take the matter under advisement.

Home Missionaries Given Reception

East Northfield, July 10.—A reception for home missionaries and delegates at the Northfield Hotel and an interpretation of songs of many lands by Miss Eleanor Cook featured the highly interesting program of the Northfield Women's Interdenominational Home Mission conference, in session here.

Speakers, besides the regular class leaders, were Rev. Dr. Raymond Calhoun of the First Congregational Church, Cambridge, Mass., and Rev. Edmund Clarke of the Labor Temple, New York City.

Newport Theater Opening Colorful

Social Leaders of Rhode Island Resort Attend Casino Function; Gowns Exquisite

NEWPORT, July 10.—Titled, gorgeous, brilliant, jewels, an avalanche of billowing chiffons and taffetas on beautiful debutantes and smart matrons, all went to uphold the eminence and style of the Casino Theater opening with a bygone decade of brilliance started the season in a blaze of glory.

True, the social season here is still early, but the Vanderbilts, Clarks, Jennings, Whitneys, Norrises, Auchinclosses were part of the audience which carried the opening performance of "The Happy Husband" to a magnificent finish.

The prevailing mode of trailing diaphanous chiffon seemed to find the greatest favor with the feminine contingent, but for the matrons and dowagers, brocades and satins and even velvets were the thing.

Of the box party which glorified the entertaining efforts of the Vanderbilts, I saw Capt. Leslie Stoenberg and Countess Stoenberg, who are housed at the Harry Payne Whitney villa. The countess was gowned in yellow.

IN THE CLEW'S BOX, MRS. HENRY CLEW was a charming hostess. Particularly bright was Madame Simopoulos, wife of the Greek ambassador, who appeared in an attractive, flaming red gown. The madame was a stunning woman, a well-known figure. Earlier in the evening I saw her leaving Bailey's beach and later at the flower show.

Both times she was in the company of Mrs. Whitney. Red must be a favorite color of the madame's, for her daytime costume was a printed, red-flowered chiffon, its ensemble effect completed by a large red milan straw.

It surprised me that Boston society was not better represented in the audience. In fact, very few of the Hays' ten tent are causing any social ripple in this Rhode Island Mecca. Those who are here are only informal in their entertaining.

Mention must be made of the extra places which follow wherever the extra guests of that sartorially-irrigating Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte move. She visited the flower show at the Casino with her fine-looking husband, wearing a blue fast-creeper, long-lined frock and blue felt hat to match, drawn low on her forehead. Such an ensemble did not attract the eyes of the spectators. The Bonapartes do not figure so prominently in the social galaxy which once marked their Newport affiliations. But the descendants of the famous French emperor still carry on in a small way. They did not attend the opening performance last night. It should not be forgotten that Mrs. Bonaparte was considered the best-dressed woman in the port of well-dressed women, an enviable distinction to say the least.

ANOTHER ONE WHO WAS very much missed was Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church, but I understand that she is to be at her brother's box party tonight. The former wife of Frederic Cameron Church has a charming shade in Dudley Place, with its blue shutters and spreading green acres. She spent yesterday at tennis. Among the first to arrive for the theatricals was that lady, Mrs. C. L. P. Robinson, a stately figure, draped in black marked by contrast with a long, white fur stole. That "society arrival" did not hold true for the boxes and the orchestra stalls were practically all filled at the curtain lifted. Although the Alexander Hamilton Hotel are not back from foreign travel, their box was enjoyed by other members of the family. Mrs. Rhea's son, George Widener, with his party, occupied the box. He is a great horseman, and a lover of sports.

AMONG THOSE WHO LEFT early were that delightful couple, Dr. and Mrs. Rodrick Terry, the latter in blue brocade and satin. Mrs. Terry is one of Newport's colorful figures. In the forenoon, she rides in an open carriage holding a black poodle over her head to protect herself from the sun's rays. I saw her taking her morning ride. The picture was one of a very reminiscent character. In the afternoon, Mrs. Terry motored.

The lovely Olive Whitman, daughter of former Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York, was an engaging picture in orchid chiffon. She is a debutante of this year, and, for her coming out, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Currier were both and hosted at a reception and dance on August 3. The Oliver Gould Franks were hosts to another gay box party, and within the enclosure followed Gliffons flattered in the breeze.

The flower show's success was largely due to the executive genius of Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Webster. Mrs. James was one of her assistants. They arranged the details so as to keep the crowd coming and going from early morning to early afternoon. The occasion served as a means of whitening away the afternoon hours and afforded opportunity for informal friendly contacts. Most notable, indeed, was the presence of the dowager Mrs. Van derbilt. She stayed but a short time.

MESSAGE SENT WOMEN BY CARDINAL

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10.—At the opening session of the annual meeting of the Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association on the Steel Pier, attended by 1500 delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada, greetings and praises were expressed in a message sent by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston. The message was brought by Rt. Rev. M. J. Spillane, diocesan director of Boston.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Spillane said, "In opening the 13th convention of the Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association of America, I am very pleased to bring to the officers and delegates the most cordial wishes, and affectionate blessing of the dean of the American hierarchy, His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell. His Eminence's message is 'May God bless the Ladies Catholic Association for all the good you have accomplished, and may God bless and strengthen you to do still greater good in the years to come.'"

Another message was received from Bishop Edmund Gibbons, supreme spiritual adviser of the association who was unable to be present. Rev. John Nugent, pastor of St. Nicholas Church, this evening addressed the association, urging the women to act as guardians of the rights of the Catholic women in America.

Mrs. Bertha McEnnis of Pittsburgh, replying in an address of welcome by Thomas Reynolds who represented Mayor Ruffo, said that the association has already planned $400,000 in Catholic work, and had $100,000 in its treasury. The convention opened with mass at St. Nicholas Church, after which the women marched to the pier.

Air Stunts for Quincy

Carrying around the sky lines in a tapered wing Waco 230 sport plane, Freddie Lund, chief pilot for Waco Airplane Co., announced his arrival at Denison Airport by nearly scaring the life out of 500 boys at that port with his antics.

Lund does everything on the rocks with the Waco, and claims to be the only commercial pilot in the world to perform the hazardous outside loop with a stock commercial airplane. Freddie will tour all the airports in New England during the coming week, and will make Denison Airport his home base. Anybody and everybody is welcome to the airport during the stunt exhibition.

Crocker Snow saw Lund fly at the Detroit air show last winter, and Crocker said the exhibition was the most thrilling he had ever seen.

Curly Flying Service received two OX-4 Command-Aire training planes via aerial delivery. Gerry Mulligan and Joe Barber doing the ferry work. The trip was uneventful until the Blue Hills were reached, and Joe's motor decided to stop working and take a rest.

The new track at Roadville was directly underneath, so Barber set her down. Mulligan landed beside him and they discovered that the carburetor needed a new float. Mulligan took off and continued to the Boston airport, got a new float, and took a Challenger engine. Robin back with Hazen Bean in the rear seat. When they arrived over the race track, Bean drew a bead on Barber and dropped the float. On his first experience in aerial bombing, Bean proved a success, almost crowding Barber with the float.

After Gerry and Hazen had been back at the Hub field for some time, Barber called up and asked for a set of magneto points, so the two bombs took off again. A wind had sprung up, and Mulligan decided to land and deliver the points in person. On the way to his landing, the ship settled into a force. A wheel was broken off.

and the plane landed on one wing. After the points had been put into the magneto by Bean, under Barber's supervision, the pair then took off in the Command-Aire and went back home.

Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, commanding officer First Corps Area, took off for Fort Elin Alton in his private plane, with Lieut. Joseph Wilson at the controls. Accompanying the general in another ship was Capt. J. W. Godfrey. The trip was for inspection purposes of the maneuvers grounds at Elin Alton, and will continue a couple of days.

Flying a beautifully painted Whitehead motorized Waco, Edwin Magruder, demonstrator for Russell "Lobo" parachutes, dropped in for a brief visit. Magruder is making a tour of the New England airports, interesting people in the Lobo chute, and is attracting all kinds of attention with his tricked-up Waco.

After a whirlwind tour of these six states, Magruder will continue his trip around the United States.

The first Wright Whirlwind five cylinder, 24 motorized Travel Air was flown in by Roy Kealey and Paul Chamberlain. The ship was sold by the East Coast Aircraft Sales Company.

Val Chick of Sunset Airways, continues his merry way in hopping in and from his home in Gloucester. Chick doesn't mind the fog that occasionally makes visibility poor. He maintains that he can fly home in 20 minutes, fog or no fog.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Shyster 'Private Bankers' Should Be Exterminated

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, July 10.—The situation in New York has had more "private bank" flavor than most of the situation.

Why are irresponsible, unscrupulous individuals and firms and companies permitted to accept bank deposits?

It is high time that the state in the Union prohibited this practice. The banks are suffering by the thousands from the small man, and the banks are being gradually heavy.

New York State banks are in a difficult position. Anybody using the term "bank" unless the institution comes under the bank law, but the banks are in a difficult position. Anybody using the term "bank" unless the institution comes under the bank law, but the banks are in a difficult position.

ALLOY WORK

New York, July 10.—A new type of alloy steel, to be manufactured by Central Alloy Steel Corp., Crucible Steel Co. of America, and Ludlum Steel Co., will be used for the first time in American architectural construction of Chrysler building at 40 St. and Lexington ave. The chief metallurgists have co-operated with the metallurgists of research laboratory of Chrysler Motor Corp. in selection of forms and finishes in which the steel is to be used. Selection of material was made after exhaustive tests of metal and alloys in metallurgical laboratories of the Chrysler Motor Corp.

Every now and again one of them closes its doors and the shareholders are left with their savings.

Admittedly, it is not easy to legislate against the irresponsible which is not hamper the legitimate operations of the responsible. There is a wide difference between J. P. Morgan & Co. and the irresponsible which is not hamper the legitimate operations of the responsible.

These figures clearly reveal that fewer failures occur among each of the national banks than among the local banks. The New York Stock Exchange than among each of the national banks than among the local banks.

AMERICAN TO PRINT GREAT WAR STORY

"All Quiet on the Western Front," the most remarkable book on the World War that has ever been written, will begin in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser and be continued daily in the Boston Evening American. This is the opinion of Cornelius Green, veteran of the 20th Division, who was wounded and wounded and who is now assistant minister at the Church of the Redemption, Boston.

Erich Maria Remarque, author of the book that has caused all Europe to give up the ghastly terror of war and which in this country already has passed the best review, joined the German army as soon as he finished school and served in the mud and filth of the trenches for four years.

"Remarque has done a great social service by such a book," says the Rev. Frederick, "and I feel that all those who are suffering from the war must do away with the trash written about the war, and put into the hands of boys and girls books such as 'All Quiet on the Western Front'."

"It is a great book and will do much toward doing away with war. We, the veterans of the war, must do away with the trash written about the war, and put into the hands of boys and girls books such as 'All Quiet on the Western Front'."

Local Col. Frank H. U. professor of military science and tactics at the University of Vermont gives the following opinion of this remarkable book:

"All Quiet on the Western Front" is the best book I have ever read. I want to recommend it to the Boston Evening American for making it possible to read a true book for so many, the reader to read it. It ought to be read by everyone."

Be sure to start reading "All Quiet on the Western Front" on Sunday. It will begin in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and be continued every day in the Boston Evening American.

of employees of the company. He was master of the steamer Pilgrim that rounded on Great Bear Island in a dense fog Sunday. At the time a fishing vessel was running the foghorn off the Pilgrim's bow. The Pilgrim was reported after she went ashore and is being repaired.

Probe Death of Indian in Maine

Fort Fairfield, Me., July 10.—County officials are investigating the death of Frank Lawlis, an Indian living on the reservation near Perth, N. B., found dead with a broken neck.

It appears that Lawlis and another Indian came to town, got very much intoxicated and started a fight between themselves. In the course of which Lawlis took a hard knock under the jaw which pitched him backward over an iron railing. He did not get up, and it was supposed to be a knockout, but examination disclosed that his neck was broken. The other Indian disappeared.

Hitch-Hiking in Maine Taboo After Monday

Augusta, Me., July 10.—On next Monday the anti-hitch hiking law will go into effect in Maine. It will be unlawful to beg a ride in any motor vehicle and the fine is $100 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days or both.

This applies to boys who seek transportation to ball games, out to the ponds or the country club, or to get spent from their various outlets to their mothers over the weekend.

The practice has assumed such proportions in the last two years that it has become a nuisance. A car can barely drive along the highway without constant application from boys and young men they wished to go.

Hitch hiking by the students has almost entirely superseded the old system of riding blind baggage or the brake rods on railroad trains.

SIX DAYS ARE NOW ENOUGH. Refuse a hitchhiker riding "blind" and appears in the Boston Sunday Advertiser on the first page. If you agree with the man who said that hitchhiking every day was entitled to a college education, every day includes Sunday.

Wants Beauties to Work for Him Alone

A bill in equity has been brought in Suffolk Superior Court by Cholina Weinstaub, New York booking agent, against Elsie Koring, "Miss Austria"; Goretta Gaubert, "Miss France"; Angela Joyce, "Miss England"; and Joy Ashley, "Miss Ireland," four international beauties, now staying in this city and due to appear at the Shoe Fair today.

Weinstaub seeks to enjoin the four young women from working for anyone but him.

It is averred by plaintiff that May 2 last, the Misses Koring, Gaubert, Joyce and Ashley signed contracts to work under him alone as manager for one year and that they have now taken work under Stanley H. Willis, Metropolitan booking agent.

AVIATION GASOLINE is the last word in Motor Fuels... It must be... Aviators take no chances... GULF NO-NOX has always maintained the highest standard in "anti-knock" fuels... Today it is stepping into the Aviation class and may be purchased from the Orange Pump for Automobile Fuel.

GULF NO-NOX is a pure petroleum product and the Orange color is for identification only... It has no effect on NO-NOX efficiency. If you want the best from your motor... use the best fuel... It's economy in the end... In fact the high compression, high speed motor demands NO-NOX.

"Lux is safe... we use Lux for everything of baby's" famous Maternity Center tells mothers...

"SMALL GARMENTS can be kept soft and fluffy through hundreds of washings, and baby comfortable, if Lux is used," says the famous Maternity Center.

LIKE most young mothers, I want to give my precious baby the very best care.

"At the famous Maternity Center in New York they told me how important it was to choose the safest, purest soap in washing baby's things. At the Center Lux is used for everything—clothes, diapers, blankets, bottles—even toys!

"For these experts say that many soaps contain alkali that will irritate a baby's skin—chafe and inflame. Lux has no harmful alkali—is absolutely safe.

"Then with Lux, there's no rubbing to mat wool fibres, leaving shirts and bands harsh and shrunken. Another reason for using Lux is that it is a truly sanitary form of soap because, unlike cake soap, the same Lux is never used twice."

Give your baby's things this safe care advised by famous experts. Then you will be sure that none of his tiny garments can ever chafe or irritate his tender skin—that everything he touches is sweet and fresh and safely clean.

"FISH PALMS" DE TOGETHER AS PLANE FALLS AT SQUANQUINN

CRASH OCCURS AT CRASH OF LONG ROP

Family of Marine Officer Waiting for Him in Home Near Scene of Tragedy

Planes at the Naval Air Station in Squanquin were scattered today by the crash of a biplane, today two of their most beloved. The "Flying Fish," Marine Lt. George B. Stephens and Gunnery Sergeant Ernest L. Jones, who were on board, were killed.

In a little cottage on Bayville rd., only a half mile from the scene of tragedy, Stephens' wife and his two small children were awaiting his return from a flight to Buffalo, N. Y.

The two men were in sight of their destination when the new biplane they had piloted from Buffalo, N. Y., crashed into the water.

The tragedy occurred within view of scores of airmen who had rushed out on the field to cheer them on the completion of their journey.

At a height of 200 feet the bright yellow plane went into a spin and plunged to 500 feet. Stephens, a veteran pilot, was evidently working his way through the bucking machine. At 500 feet he was partially successful, but he went into another spin. Once more at 200 feet the plane seemed to be struggling out. Then it went headlong into the water, only 50 feet from the base.

For 50 minutes afterwards fellow aviators plunged into the water, trying to extricate the bodies from the plane. Palmoters of the Quinby police and fire departments were brought into action when the bodies were finally recovered. Both men were dead when they were brought to shore.

Dr. Fred J. Bailey, deputy health commissioner of Boston, who is a veteran in the naval service, declared later his belief that they died from the fall and not from drowning as was first believed.

Few aviation facilities in New England have had more tragic elements connected with them and probably such general sorrow was displayed by fellow pilots at the Squanquin base. For hours after the mishap, scores of airmen of the World War really batted with their emotions, and the tears and shock in their eyes were followed by no two aviators more beloved than Lieut. Stephens and Sergeant Jones.

Both were attached to the Squanquin base for more than a year. In Squanquin they were tremendously popular and every activity was followed with interest. Besides, the two of them were flying pals, always aloft in the same ship. Some months ago they had flown from Squanquin to a point off Cape Cod, Mass., in search for missing fliers and all Squanquin talked of their flight. Monday they left for a flight to being Squanquin. The plans and everyone was keenly interested in their adventure.

Amesbury, July 10.—Crashed from what the police say, were the wreckage of a biplane, today the 25th of a Boardman, was arrested after a flight from the city, the first plane with a 12-gauge shot gun.

Complaint was first received at police headquarters after Willette had ordered his family to leave the house. Patrolman John J. Burke, the first officer to arrive at the scene, after the officer had been called to the house, and after telling the officer to "get out," fired at him. The shot passed about two feet over the officer's head.

Later Patrolman Thomas Finerty and Special Officer Paul Reardon entered the house. Willette was seated in a chair, but rose to his feet and, he said, snatched a revolver from his pocket and fired at the officers. He fired a second shot at his daughter, Lena, 20, when she and her children attempted to follow Patrolman Burke into the house.

He was seized by Officers Finerty and Reardon and placed under arrest.

Worcester Kin Get Halloran Fortune
New York, July 10.—Anne and Margaret Halloran, sisters of 8 and 10, were killed today in a crash of a biplane. The plane, which was worth $15,000, crashed from the estate of Mr. Halloran, who was a wealthy man, who died last June 10, leaving a fortune of $1,000,000.

Willebrandt Is 'Half Angel, Half Demon'

New York, July 10 (INS).—Nathaniel Willebrandt, a character reader, dramatist, and physiognomist and a few ordinary persons met at the "House of Four Winds," the palatial summer home of Mrs. Frank Hart Patton, for the first annual convention of the society of human engineers.

The society, which was incorporated in 1927, is for the purpose of bringing these and other sorts of oligarchs together and get them all working for "vulgar" diversity.

About 40 persons were present. William Edward Barton, a character reader, dramatist, and physiognomist, demonstrated his "personality mirror," showing how Thomas A. Edison was half practical and half demon, how Hans Willebrandt was half angel and half demon, or something like that.

Vincent Lopez came upon some points. He is a student of Clifford A. Chasler, president of the society, and declared that he selected his players by numerology.

The founder of the order of justice, Charles Lorraine Robinson of Brooklyn, said it took him 10 years to learn the secret of life and the law of balance.

Mr. Kwah Griffith of Hollywood, Calif., declared that he was a "half angel, half demon."

A total of $400 was paid out of the pockets of 33 applicants today in South Boston where they were engaged for wheeling their cars out in bonnydays adjacent to Boston's Boston beaches.

A fifth spender, operator of a taxi, appeared before the court. The defendants, trapped separately by Capt. John J. Rooney of the City Police station and Michael J. Burke of the station, were charged with driving over 15 miles an hour.

As they paid their fines, ranging from $5 to $25, the defendants were lectured by the judge. The speeding and were told that the beach beach patrons must be protected.

GRILLS SON OF SLIPPER WOMAN ON INSURANCE

Portland, Me., July 10.—Albert T. Skilley, son of Mrs. Delphine Skilley, 64, slain in her waterfront home last week, was questioned today by Capt. William F. White, chief of police, regarding an insurance policy that he left Portland Friday, and in which the son was said to have been named as beneficiary.

According to the story, Stewart was a "drunk" during most of the fortnight past. He was uncertain as to some of his movements within that period, but declared that he left Portland Friday with another man, going riding on "nerves" to Berlin, N. H., where the two sought work. No jobs were available, Stewart said, so he hid back to Portland again. At the time he was in Berlin, he read that two men were sought, one a "drifter" and the other a "drunk."

"I'm a drifter," Stewart said, "I suppose, though, some folks might call me a drinker."

Stewart insisted that he knew nothing of Mrs. Skilley's killing and had no part in it.

A cryptic message of six words, "Forget the past—forget the future," was said to have been written to her husband by Mrs. Skilley, declared to stretch the police theory that robbery was the cause of the murder.

It was learned that Mrs. Skilley, who died a divorce suit against George Warren Skilley of Haverhill, Mass., several months ago, had recently asked her attorney, Henry C. Sullivan, to drop the prosecution of her husband, who was charged with the murder.

Under the circumstances, his message would suggest that she had hoped for reconciliation.

NEED "SARVES" PARENTS

Be Reasonable With Your Children, Col. Atkinson Maintains

Boys and girls at today are not going to the bad—they are all right if their parents don't sit down on them too hard.

This is the opinion of Col. Joseph Atkinson, new commander of the Salvation Army of New England, who took office today as successor to Col. Stephen Marshall, retired.

Col. Atkinson came up from the ranks as a buck private and is in sympathy with the ideals and problems of young people, he is an advice to parents.

"Be reasonable with your child, remembering that they are not evil spirits and that there is more opportunity for them to go wrong today than ever before," is his advice to parents.

Col. and Mrs. Atkinson are the parents of three sons, including Howard Atkinson, principal of the Union, Mass., high school.

"Boys and girls are much nearer to their parents than at their parents," commented Col. Atkinson, "and parents must revise their methods of upbringing."

Col. Atkinson's first act in entering New England was a sad one for him—that of officiating at the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Finn Atkinson, who died last week.

Col. Atkinson received his early training in the Salvation Army at a time when the Army was not understood and was often subject to persecution.

PROMOTION RAPID
Two years later the young man was sent to New York for special training, with promotion to adjutant.

While in Pittsburgh, the work of the Atkinson family was characterized by great growth and improvement in the number of corps and the character of the work.

BERTAZZOLO TO TRAIN GAGNON

By JACK CONWAY

BERTAZZOLO, fighting son of Dartmouth, today still is the world's heavyweight wrestling champion as a result of his victory over Ed "Strangler" Lewis in their battle before 20,000 fans at Fenway Park.

Bertazzolo once again proved the victor by his spectacular flying tackle. He scored a knock-out in the second fall, and a second flying tackle in the third fall, to win the match.

Lewis, son of the first fall of the match in which he was defeated by a knockout. The champion, who had moved with two flying tackles and was off balance when the Strangler scored his second knock-out, was off his feet.

The fight was a close one, with Lewis scoring a knock-out in the second fall, and Bertazzolo scoring a knock-out in the third fall.

The fight was a close one, with Lewis scoring a knock-out in the second fall, and Bertazzolo scoring a knock-out in the third fall.

Sonnenberg proved that he is the world's heavyweight wrestling champion.

Lewis made his big effort in the early part of the match, but even then he knew more upon his skill and superior strength.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

American and British Track Teams Train at the Stadium

WELSH WORK OUT FOR 8 DAYS

By JOHN GILLOLY
HARVARD-YALE and Oxford Cambridge start the final three days of practice for the biennial international track and field war at the stadium today. The big meet will be staged on Saturday afternoon and the athletes will taper off with light workouts. Bid Kesselhorst, the only cripple on either squad, has managed enough to be assured of doing his best on Saturday. The Yale team and low hurdler had a lame back last week and had to be taped up, but he is right again.

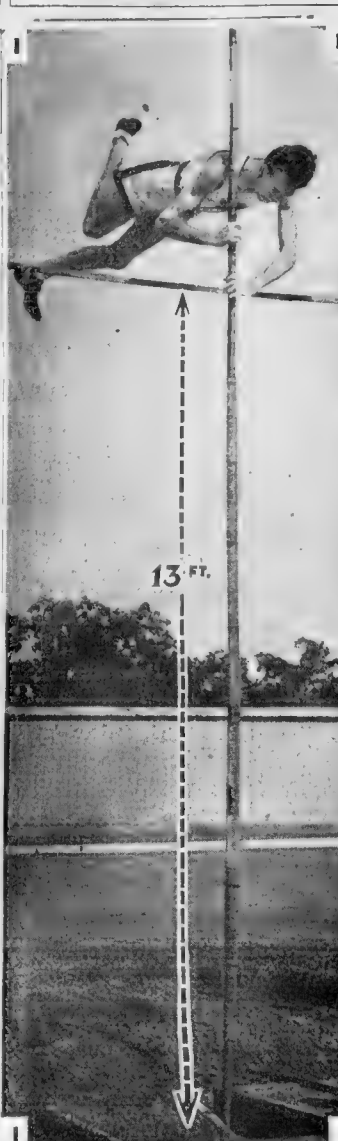

At this time the outcome of the meet is a tossup. Second place may eventually have to be included to determine the outcome and the American coaches are concentrating on second place possibilities.

At the best the U. S. collegians have but a fighting chance of victory yet the team, in every respect, seems to have the spirit to come through over the invading Brits.

Jimmy Field in the two miles, Charley Noble in the 220 yard Kesselhorst in the 200 low hurdles, and Fred Sturdy in the pole vault seem to be sure first place winners. It's hard to figure where the British can win these events.

On the other hand, the British can claim as many potential first places. Gordon in the high jump, Green in the mile, Leigh-Wood in the quarter, and either Wilkinson or Norton in the centur.

TRACK STARS GUESTS AT DINNER

New Haven, Conn., July 10.—The Oxford and Cambridge athletes who will vie with picked stars from Yale and Harvard at the stadium on Saturday, were guests at a dinner in their honor by the Yale Athletic Association at the Pine Orchard Country Club.

Present at the dinner was Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut who welcomed the visiting delegation on behalf of the state. Charles W. Merrill, dean of Yale University was the hostmaster.

Among those who responded to the call of the hostmaster were A. C. Gilbert, former Yale pole vaulter and chairman of the graduate committee on track at Yale; William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard; Jack Cates, director of athletics at Yale; Dr. R. Salisbury Woods of Cambridge University, honorary treasurer and chairman of the British team; R. Leigh-Wood, captain, and D. M. Wilson, vice-captain of Oxford Cambridge team; and Jimmie Reed, captain of Harvard and Bid Kesselhorst, captain-elect of the Yale track team. The visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the reception accorded them on their visit to New Haven and shared the hope that these visits would be continued in the future.

Charles B. Norton of Vassar, Harlan, Mass., brother of M. Norton, Oxford former Yale captain and star sprinter and broad jumper, joined his son here and was one of the guests at the dinner in honor of the visiting delegation tonight.

The athletes representing the four universities will leave New Haven tomorrow morning on Train No. 10 at 11:40 a. m. daylight time in special cars attached to that train for Boston, where the Harvard Athletic Association will continue the extensive program of entertainment for the athletes, coaches and other officials.

It is expected that only light workouts will be pursued during the remainder of the week, as on Saturday the real test will come in the Harvard Stadium.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

The reason I ask all of you in the beginners' class to learn the waggle is because the waggle is in reality the beginning of the back swing. The golf swing as a whole is one continuous flowing motion, which is first put into motion in the waggle. Correctly executed, the swing starts with the waggle, then flows into the beginning, then continues in a continuous flow of effortless energy into and through the ball. In these lessons omit the ball. Take your stance and grip and position the club head as if the ball were there. Then waggle and, as you conclude your waggle, drop the clubhead momentarily into its position directly back of the ball, then continue right along with it, with a sense of pick-up and get the clubhead just barely passing back of the ball after the waggle. In starting it back thus, I want you to go no farther than about two to maybe three feet back with the clubhead. And as the clubhead swings along keep it low to the ground as long as you can keep it down there without actually reaching to keep it down. Fracture that today.

GOLE FUL SONG LONG SOUTH SHORE

By BILL GRIMES
After a two-week intermission, the open tournaments swing back into action tomorrow, with the annual three-day "Either or Both," which will be staged jointly by the Scituate and Plymouth country clubs.

At the open tournament players have been idle for a fortnight, a record breaking field is predicted at both Scituate and Plymouth. Also, the fact that the "Either or Both" is the only open on the M. G. A. list for this weekend, will mean more than the usual large number of starters.

For years, the "Either or Both" tournament has enjoyed rare popularity among the golfers. In this state is for the weather, which has kept away the rain almost every year the attendance at Scituate and Plymouth open tournaments has been checked by bad weather, and the South Shore clubs are excited to a break which will bring summer, instead of rain, for the next three days.

In THREE DIVISIONS
For the first time in the history of the "Either or Both" tournament, the field will be split into three divisions, and the winners of the Scituate and Plymouth clubs are offering 13 prizes. There will be the usual two gross and two net prizes for the combined scores of the Scituate and Plymouth clubs. Also, both clubs are offering gross and net trophies for each division.

Last year Bill Blaney, of Bras Burn, the New England amateur champion, captured the low gross of the combined scores. His set up, not unlike a Scituate club, where he raced around in 65, nipping a stroke off Francis Outmer's eight-year-old record. The second gross of the combined clubs went to Dwight Barnum, of Duxbury, the South Shore champion, and Billy Munnell of Oakley took the third gross of the combined.

As Bill Blaney was awarded the combined club prize, Harold Major, now representing the Brockton Country Club, came in for the gross at Scituate, just missing out Frank Rogers, of Weymouth. Parley Crosby, Woodland, led the pack at Plymouth with Ray Gorton of Bras Burn right on his heels.

USERS DOPE
A. V. Rogers, a 13-year-old youngster, upset the dope by turning in the best net score at Scituate, whereas he was the second net went to John Whitman of the South Shore Country Club. Down at Plymouth, H. D. Hinkley had the best net with Tommie Welch of Scarborough the runner-up. Although the play at Scituate and Plymouth will be heavy tomorrow and Friday, the big jam will not be on until Saturday, when there will be a mad rush by players, who will be unable to play on either the first or second day and the going is bound to be slow. Most of the players plan to play both courses on the same day and make a trip between the two clubs, when made by auto, is just a pleasant ride, on a State road.

At Scituate is a nine-hole course and the play is usually heavier there, it will be to the advantage of players to telephone to Jack Leary for starting time. Dan Kilfer, chairman of the golf committee at Scituate and Jack Hornblower, of Plymouth, have completed arrangements for handling the largest field that has ever played at the Scituate clubhouse, where Paul Muckenbaum holds forth, and Plymouth has arranged for accommodations at the Hotel Phipps.

Fred Corcoran, the State handicapper, will divide his time between the two clubs for the next three days, later for what you have not secured State handicapper.

There again is the speed cup. Swiftly he goes without stop. "By golly," said the pedestrian, "I'm lucky. I was not the one."

Such a squalling trumpet he has. You can at once tell who he was. That gleaming light of the highway. Sometimes deludes his destiny.

But gee he is too clever. He catches anybody who oversteps: For once you go down and out. He knows your speed without doubt.

Good Time Guy

WELL, WHAT'S THE ANSWER—ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF A WIDE-OPEN TOWN OR OF CLANNISH DOMINATION? A BUNCH OF HOME-GROWN SUPPRESSED DESIRES?

AS A MAJORITY CANDIDATE, I WANT TO KEEP AN OPEN MIND!

BUT DON'T MISTAKE A VACUANCY FOR AN OPENING! ARE YOU FOR OUR MOVEMENT OR DO YOU STRUGGLE WITH THEM REFORM DAMES WHO WANT TO TIE THIS TOWN IN A BUNCH OF HARD NOYS?

WE'LL CANDIDATELY SPEAKING, I FAVOR NEITHER FACTION—VICE NOR VICEVERSA! BUT I'M GOING TO SEE TO IT THAT THERE'S NO DEASTIC REDUCTION IN THE WAGES OF SIN—AND YOU CAN PAINT THAT ON YOUR FLUVER!

SO, THAT'S YOUR STORY, EH, MR. ASPIRING MAYOR? WELL, LISTEN, ONLY HALF THE PEOPLE IN THIS BURG EVER VOTE, AND THE OTHER HALF ARE ASLEEP. AFTER ELECTION AND FIND OUT IT WAS THE WRONG HALF!
